FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:Würth Service Supply Shares Success by Giving Back to a Unique Cause

Würth Service Supply, a distributor of industrial assembly components, has taken its recent and continuous upturn in sales revenue as an opportunity to give back to the communities in which its branches are located. The company headquarters, located in Indianapolis, recently made a donation to an Indianapolis based non-profit organization, TheraPets of Indiana. TheraPets of Indiana is a 100% volunteer organization that provides animal assisted therapy.

Würth Service Supply held a competition among the sales representatives to see who could generate the most sales dollars through new customers between January 1 and April 30, 2011. John Charbeneau, Grand Rapids, MI, brought in the most new sales dollars and met with TheraPets in Indianapolis to present a donation of $1,000 to the non-profit group. The donation amount was based on a pre-determined percentage of sales dollars generated during the contest period.

TheraPets volunteers and dogs met with John Charbeneau and other Würth employees in the Indianapolis headquarters offices. Würth employees had a chance to experience first-hand some of the benefits of the animal assisted therapy group. "It was really incredible hearing their stories and it was great to get to know the unique cause we're benefiting. After meeting the volunteers and dogs, I think this will provide additional motivation to generate new sales in order to give back even more," said Lindsey Balensiefer, Marketing Assistant. "The office atmosphere was energized all day. It's amazing what these dogs are capable of."

Würth Service Supply continues to grow its business and look for more opportunities to give back to the communities it is a part of across the country.
